Five Italian Aviators Died on Ocean Hop

2 PLANES CRASHED SOON AFTER START OF BRAZIL FLIGHT

One Ship Fell and Burst Into Flame, Taking Lives of Entire Crew of Four.

MECHANIC KILLED IN SECOND WRECK

Of 14 Planes to Start, Two Fell Near Boloma, and Two Alighted on Ocean.

BOLAMA, Portuguese Guinea, Africa, Jan. 7.—(P)—Five Italian aviators died and three others were injured at the start of the great aviation adventure which carried 10 seaplanes safely from this point on the west African coast to Brazil yesterday.

The Stefani News Agency, official Italian press service, said tonight that two planes crashed shortly after the take-off.

Two others, which were forced to land on the ocean while General Italo Balbo took the 10 remaining ships safely into Natal, were taken charge of by Italian naval vessels. The Stefani agency said both were expected to be towed to Fernando Noronha, Brazil, and then to Natal.

(This official announcement by the Stefani agency clears up the confusion which has existed since General Balbo and his 10 ships skimmed to rest at Natal after a speedy trip of 17 hours, 15 minutes yesterday. First reports said that 12 ships left Boloma, with two of them landing at sea en route, but later dispatches from various sources asserted that two had not been able to take off. The official report shows that 14—two of them were repaired and replacement units not scheduled to make the trip originally—took off.)

Of the two which met disaster, Captain Regan took one from the water but it dived sharply after reaching an altitude of only about 50 yards. The man killed, a sergeant major acting as mechanic, was riding above the right pontoon, which was shoved upward and wrecked when the plane dropped to the surface. Captain Regan, another officer acting as co-pilot, and the radio operator were injured.

The other unfortunate ship, commanded by Captain Boer, flew all right for about 10 minutes after the take-off, but suddenly was forced to land at full speed.

So sharply did the heavy sea plane slap upon the ocean that fire broke out and burned to death the four occupants, Captain Boer, Lieutenant Barbicini, Sergeant Mechanic Nensi and Radio Operator Barbicini. The accidents were attributed to extremely heavy loads.

Brown, Williams Die in Texas Crash

Errett Williams, widely known southern pilot, who was killed Wednesday, along with Art Brown, former Atlanta flier, and youthful passenger, when their plane crashed in Texas, thrilled local aviation fans by his performance in the Atlanta air races held in November, 1929. At the top, the Eaglerock "Bullet," which Williams piloted with such success, is shown rounding a Candler field pylon, banked only a few degrees short of vertical. The popular aviator is shown in the oval below.

MARSHALL, Texas, Jan. 7.—(P)—A son boy on at Fort Worth. The crash happened about two hours later. Two negro farmers reported they observed the plane flying low in a dense fog. They said the motor was sputtering. The ship started gaining height and then suddenly came straight down, they said.

The dead are Arthur C. Brown, former Atlanta pilot, of New Orleans; Errett Williams, widely known southern flier, of New Orleans, co-pilot; and Robert Wilson, 16, of Fort Worth.

The plane, flying the Weddell-Williams passenger line between Dallas and New Orleans, had taken the Wil-

HENDRIX ELECTED COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Walter B. Stewart Is Named Vice Chairman of Fulton Commission.

Walter C. Hendrix, former state senator, Wednesday was elected chairman of the Fulton county board of commissioners at its reorganization meeting to serve for the current year. Walter B. Stewart will serve as vice chairman.

The board followed its custom of rotating the chairmanship in the selection of Mr. Hendrix, but in the selection of Mr. Stewart passed up Commissioner Edward H. Iman, minority member, who, under the rotating process, would have been vice chairman this year and chairman next year. The selection of Mr. Hendrix was forecast last month and for the last several weeks it was known that Mr. Stewart would be the majority's choice for the vice chairmanship. Mr. Hendrix was nominated by retiring Chairman W. L. Gilbert and approved unanimously. Mr. Stewart was nominated by Commissioner Paul S. Ethridge and likewise obtained unanimous approval. Mr. Hendrix announced on being

HEWELL DRUNK, NEGRO TESTIFIES

Witness Tells Jury of Fatal Shooting of Minsk by Policeman.

A negro state's witness at the trial of Odus C. Hewell, veteran patrolman, on trial for murder in connection with the slaying last August 4, of Jake Minsk, a butcher, Wednesday testified that the policeman was drunk when he shot and fatally wounded Minsk in his Decatur street shop where he had gone to arrest the butcher on complaint of his brother, Harry Minsk.

The negro was James West, called as a rebuttal witness to offer testimony in the state's attempt to discredit the sworn statement Patrolman Hewell had made on the witness stand earlier in the afternoon.

BUSINESS NEWS BRIGHTENS HOPE FOR U. S. JOBLESS

Revival of Steel Trade Proves Help—Many of Nation's Firms Plan Ex- pansions.

250 AUGUST SHOPMEN RETURN TO OLD JOBS

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 7.—(P)—There has been no curtailment at the Southern railroad shops here. Two hundred and fifty Georgia railroad shopmen were at work here Wednesday after a three-week layoff. Regular working hours of five 8-hour days per week are to be in vogue.

Seventy-five C. & W. C. shopmen, who also work for the Central of Georgia and Atlantic Coast Line railroads, have also been put back to work on a full five-day week.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(P)—The delicate needle on the gauge of national employment shot upward today under the pressure of encouraging news.

The prospect of work for an additional 100,000 men was announced at Washington by Thomas MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads. That many men, he said, will cash in on the increased road construction funds voted by congress.

Chairman Woods of the Hoover committee on unemployment told a senate committee he thought there would be no improvement in employment conditions until spring, but even as he spoke, industry in every section of America began answering in brighter tones than it has hummed for many months.

A survey by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce showed 69 concerns there planning to increase their pay rolls this month. One thousand employees already have been recalled by one clothing company.

The Beech Grove repair shops of the Big Four railroad at Indianapolis reopened today with 1,910 men having the encouraging prospect of steady eight-hour a day employment five days a week. Six hundred workmen returned to jobs at the Ford plant in Indianapolis.

The first weekly steel trade reviews today noted a sharp business upturn. Pig iron production, placed at 41 per cent of its rated capacity, was reported by Iron Age to have recovered its December losses. Automobile steel, railroad steel, tin plate and structural tonnage are contributing most to current mill activity, the magazine said.

The Pennsylvania railroad announced the placing of orders for 200,000 tons of steel rail for the year, the contracts at present prices totaling $8,500,000. Expenditures for attachments—frogs, switches, tie plates—will bring the expenditure of the Pennsylvania to more than $15,000,000. Fifteen per cent of the rail order is for immediate delivery.

The RCA Victor Company plant at Camden, N. J., reopened after a month's suspension, affecting about 4,000 workers.

Many Increases. There were numerous increases in employment in New England. A New Bedford, Mass., shirt company announced the employment of 500 additional men. A spun silk concern resumed capacity operation. The Indian Motorcycle Company announced plans for abandoning a four-day week in February in favor of a full time operation. Westinghouse Electric at Springfield, Mass., is getting ready to step up production with 250 extra workers; and the King

Constitution To Broadcast News Nightly Over WGST

BY WILLIAM O. KEY JR.
Just as soon as Amos 'n' Andy conclude their program at 10:15 o'clock tonight, turn your dial over to the 890-kilocycle register—WGST—and hear the good news—The Constitution goes back on the air with Colonel L. O. Moseley, first news-caster of the first station in Georgia WGST—at the microphone.

Over station WGST beginning on the dot of 10:15 tonight and every night in the year at that hour, The Constitution will give Atlantans and Georgians, as well as the rest of the south, a 15-minute period of extra-news service that covers the local, state, national and international field, with sprightly radio glimpses into outstanding features that will be carried in its columns the following morning.

In resuming its radio activities, The Constitution re-enters a field in which it pioneered in the earliest days of broadcasting in America's history. In choosing WGST as the medium through which such supplementary news service will be supplied the public, it actually goes back to a station that had its inception and virtually owes its existence to one of the south's first radio plants—that of old WGM, the radio phone station of The Constitution which first began daily broadcasts on March 17, 1922.

It was on St. Patrick's Day, 1922, that the generating plant of Station WGM, erected by The Constitution, first was energized and Atlantans and Georgians listened to some of the first words ever to be transmitted over "wireless" in this section of the country. At 7 o'clock that night, L. O. Moseley, now manager of the Ansley hotel, but at that time member of the staff of

The Constitution, inaugurated radio broadcasting over WGM.

Within a short while the variety of The Constitution station's daily broadcasts developed into what was a forerunner of present-day programs—breaking away from the cut-and-dried, routine daily talks and dull reviews and initiating regular programs of music, informative programs of entertainment and colorful features that even in that early day set the pace for other American radio stations.

For several years WGM continued to play an important part in the every day lives of its listeners, un-

When Recorder John L. Cone stepped him tentatively on the shoulder. "Gimme a dime, boss," a man the recorder recognized, whined. "I ain't got no dime." "Didn't I see you in police court last night?" the recorder demanded. The beggar smiled wisely, and became confidential. "Yeah, was you there, too? An' did you see how that old judge fell for that hard luck tale I handed him? 'Bov, I had to laugh—"

By that time the beggar saw a strange gleam in the recorder's eyes, and the light dawned on him, just as Mr. Cone made a lurch for him. Down Broad street he scampered, the recorder slowly but surely being outdistanced.

With one more lesson in human nature to his store, the recorder says he'd like to get hold of Mr. Logan very, very much.

til, finally, when it became known that the Georgia School of Technology desired to establish a radio-telephone laboratory and plant but without sufficient funds, the publisher of The Constitution donated the plant of WGM for that purpose, and the paper's daily broadcasts were suspended.

Georgia Tech, with the assistance thus rendered, was enabled to build up one of the finest broadcasting stations in the south, and eventually established the present station, WGST, on the roof of the Ansley hotel. A year ago, through the influence of a number of prominent Atlantans, the station succeeded in obtaining membership in the Columbia Broadcasting System's network, thus giving Tech and WGST an affiliation which assured Atlanta radio owners of one of the finest network systems in the United States.

Tonight, at 10:15—right after Amos 'n' Andy sign off—Colonel Moseley will once again face the microphone for The Constitution, re-inaugurating what will be one of the most valuable night news services available throughout the country.

You will be able to hear The Constitution "put the world to bed" and then you may go to yours, satisfied that all's right, or—it may be, as it often is—that somewhere, something is all wrong. That's news. Whether everything's right or otherwise, you will know it over WGST between 10:15 and 10:30 o'clock, Atlanta time.

Just a half turn of the dial will take you from your favorite Amos 'n' Andy to the last-minute news of the entire world, over WGST, "The Friendly Station."

Tune in before you turn in!

HARTWELL AYERS DIES OF WOUNDS

Former Atlantan Passes in Panama After Gallant Fight.

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 7.—(P)—Hartwell F. Ayers, former Atlanta newspaperman, who was wounded by stray bullets last Friday in the fighting which established a new government in Panama, died today at the Gorgas hospital.

Death came peacefully early in the morning at the end of a long fight in which his vitality surprised the doctors. Late last night Dr. Harmodio Arias, the provisional president, came to the hospital to wish his friend well and to apologize for the pressure of affairs of state which had prevented his coming earlier.

When the shooting began in front of the presidential palace last Friday, Ayers ignored the danger and went into the thick of the fighting. He did not receive immediate attention from the excitement and an emergency operation when he finally was taken to the hospital could not save his life. He was the only man in the group of his death today he sent his sympathy to the family through the Panama legation at Washington.

"I am deeply sorry," he said, "for the death of this brave newspaperman whom I knew and liked so well." Dr. Francisco Arias Paredes, the foreign minister and also a friend of Ayers, praised his courage and described him as a "splendid chap."

Funeral services will be held here Friday and the body will be placed on the steamer Iriana Saturday for New Orleans, where it will arrive January 15.

DR. ARIAS SENDS SYMPATHY TO AYERS' FAMILY HERE

Almost five days to the hour after he was shot down on the plaza of the presidential palace at Panama City, Panama, during the overthrow of the Panamanian government, Hartwell F. Ayers, former Atlanta newspaperman, succumbed at dawn Wednesday to bullet wounds, ending a desperate struggle of life in which the young writer's unusual vitality amazed physicians and his courage and devotion to duty were his strength.

CULPEPPER PLAN BRINGS CHARGES IN COMMITTEE

Gubernatorial Primary Refought as Ways and Means Members Attack and Defend Hardman.

CARSWELL IDEA "SUGAR-COATED"

Defeated Candidate Tar- get of Edwards; Tax Bills Introduced in House During Session.

BY R. E. POWELL.

More and louder echoes of the Russell-Carswell gubernatorial campaign consumed most of a two-hour session of the house ways and means committee Wednesday afternoon when it received, informally and with mixed feelings, Chairman J. Wesley Culpepper's proposal to raise $5,000,000 by selling W. & A. railroad rentals to the state highway board.

Adjournment of the first full session of the committee, which must approve all plans for paying off the state deficit of $6,200,000, came after a motion by Representative Battle, of Muscogee county, for the appointment of a committee to draft the W. & A. rental plan had been withdrawn by its maker and after Governor Hardman, Secretary of State George H. Carswell and Chairman Culpepper had been made separate and collective targets of praise and censure.

Seven Measures Introduced. The long committee session, reflecting sharp divergence of legislative views as to the most expedient method of meeting the state's unpaid appropriation bills, featured a legislative day which saw seven financial measures, two of which would increase taxes and all five of which related indirectly to the financial emergency the legislature has been convened to relieve.

In presenting his plan to the committee at the first meeting since the gavel fell, Chairman Culpepper informed members that the state deficit, when credited with about one-half, or $1,320,000, of the income taxes due for the year 1930 would amount to $5,000,000 in round figures. He suggested that the committee limit its consideration of money raising plans to this figure and explaining that Governor Hardman, in fixing the total unpaid appropriation figure at $7,458,545 had not made allowance for the 1930 income taxes which, he explained, are to be credited to 1930 appropriations.

Culpepper Offers Plan. Branding as "unthinkable" the proposal, submitted but disapproved by Governor Hardman, that $8,640,000 of W. & A. past 12 months income on a basis that would yield the state less than one dollar for two, Chairman Culpepper said that his plan which

NOTED FLIERS ON HAND FOR MIAMI AIR RACES

Summerville, Moffett Take Part in Dedication—Meet Opens Today.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Droning propellers and motors of a host of service and civilian airplanes were still today as Miami formally dedicated the third annual All-American air meet in a program led by General Charles P. Summerville, retired army chief of staff, and Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of naval aviation. Planes that dropped down onto local airports singly and in groups throughout today brought a steady influx of famous war and peace-time fliers, high officials of the United States and other governments, and civilian aviation enthusiasts. The meet, international in aspect, will be turned over tomorrow and for the next two days to the maneuvers of racing and stunt planes of the army, navy and marine corps and of civilian aviation enthusiasts. General Summerville and Admiral Moffett were called tonight for addresses on the necessity of aviation in national defense. The latter also partook in a ceremony in which the city of Miami turned over to the navy the new Opalocka airport for use of a naval reserve aviation training base here. Further dedication ceremonies will be conducted at the field tomorrow. The program of 34 daily races and other events will be started at municipal airport shortly after noon tomorrow. Because of lengthy routine business before the board consideration of the salary schedule of county employees was postponed until a later date. Chairman Hendrix announcing that he probably would call a special meeting of the board in the next week or ten days to discuss the matter. The board went on record to continue its economy program, its members asserting that special curtailment of expenses would be carried on in the division of public works, declaring that unless additional income is obtained during the year no streets or roads are to be paved in 1931. However, on motion of Mr. Inman, the board unanimously voted to furnish labor for "A" paving jobs in which the city furnishes equipment and material and bears costs other than those for labor.

BROWN, WILLIAMS KILLED IN CRASH

Lines between Atlanta and Birmingham, and Williams was a widely known southeastern pilot, having participated in Atlanta and Miami air races. The bodies were brought here. It was the second fatal airplane accident in this immediate section this week, three men having been killed in a crash at Overton Sunday morning. They were flying from Shreveport, La., to Dallas.

BROWN AND WILLIAMS WIDELY KNOWN IN ATLANTA

Art Brown and Erret Williams, who lost their lives Wednesday in Texas, both were widely known in Atlanta. Brown having flown for several months for Davis Air Lines between Atlanta and Birmingham, and Williams having visited Candler field on a number of occasions. Brown, who was exceedingly popular at Candler field, where he was regarded as an excellent pilot, came to Atlanta for the first time in the fall of 1929, at which time he was connected with the Travel Air Company, at Wichita, Kan., when he ferried to this city one of the Travel Air monoplanes put into service by the Davis Air Lines. Following that first visit he returned to Atlanta to live, formed a connection with Interstate Air Lines, Inc., and then became affiliated with the Davis concern. Flying between here and Birmingham until the dissolution of the company. He had not been in Atlanta for several months.

Williams was one of the best known pilots in the country and was extremely popular at Candler field and throughout the south, where he had established a reputation as a first-rate pilot. With unusual ability as a racing pilot, he also had made a fine record in the more prosaic field of commercial operations and was considered a steady and reliable airman. Williams became widely known to the local general public in the fall of 1929, when, at the controls of an Eaglerock "Bullet," he won several races in the Atlanta air races of that year. At that time he was connected with the Alexander Aircraft Corporation, of Colorado Springs, manufacturers of Eaglerock planes, and had been one of the company's test pilots on the "Bullet." He joined the Caterpillar Club while in Colorado, balling out of a "Bullet" which fell to its demolition in a flat spin.

Williams came to the south in 1926 and established headquarters at Albany, Ga., for barnstorming operations throughout this state. The following year he migrated to South Carolina, settled in Greenville and formed the Williams Flying Service. The company is still in operation, though Williams left Greenville two or three months ago to accept a position as pilot with the Weddell-Williams airline, with headquarters at Shreveport and with routes radiating through the southwest.

Beeler Blevins, veteran Atlanta pilot, was close friend of Williams and Wednesday recalled with pleasure their association during 1921 and 1922, when they barnstormed together over a large part of Kansas and Missouri. Williams, at that time, had just been wiped out by a disastrous fire which had destroyed the hangar and planes belonging to a flying service he had established at Arkansas City, Kan.

TWO KILLED IN PLANE CRASH IN OKLAHOMA

ADA, Okla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Wayne Spencer, 21, operator of the Spencer flying school, and Lee Davis, a passenger, were killed in the crash of their airplane five miles southeast of Ada late today. Both lived here.

Negro Stabbed.

David Thomas, negro, who lives in Redwood alley, was seriously stabbed Wednesday night when he resisted the efforts of two negro bandits to rob him. Thomas, taken to Grady hospital with knife wounds in the left lung, told police the pair advanced on him as he was crossing the Edgewood avenue bridge. He was robbed of $2.50.

The death in Texas Wednesday of Art Brown and Erret Williams, both of whom were widely known and decidedly popular in Atlanta, brought a note of sadness to routine activities at the airport. Brown was more of an Atlanta pilot than Williams, having worked as pilot for Interstate Airlines, Inc. for a time and then as pilot on the Atlanta-Birmingham passenger line operated by Davis Airlines.

Williams, however, made any number of visits to Candler field during his several years' residence in Greenville, S. C., where he organized the Williams Flying Service. He gained considerable prominence by his handling of the experimental and then highly tricky Eaglerock "Bullet" at a number of air meets. He won the free-for-all event at the Atlanta air races in 1929 and made a fine showing in larger affairs in other parts of the country. Considered one of the best pilots in the south, he also was highly regarded as a man.

Business continued to hum at the airport Wednesday, with all air mail and passenger planes but two running on schedule and with a number of out-of-town planes, most of them bound for Miami, landing for service. The same bad weather conditions which caused the Brown-Williams crash prevented C. A. M. 33, the transcontinental route operated by Southern Air Fast Express, Inc., from moving in either direction Wednesday.

Four ships which had been stranded for three days off the shore of Harbor, at Murfreesboro, because of poor flying conditions, were able to get through to Atlanta Wednesday and to continue their journeys southward. The group included a "Waco" Taperwing, flown by George Parlich, with A. W. Kelliper as passenger; a J-5 Monococh, with Art Carnahan as pilot, and Tom Woods and Skeet Stennis as passengers; a Lycoming Stinson, carrying H. M. Toomey, pilot, and J. W. Garland and "Slim" Lord, passengers, and a Vello-powered Arrow Sport, piloted by M. O. Schultz, flying alone.

Lieutenant W. W. Kratz, who flies an Aerona for the American Aeronautical Corporation, its manufacturers, was back in Atlanta Wednesday in the diminutive craft, which is powered with a tiny, two-cylinder opposed engine. Kratz passed through Candler field about three weeks ago on a projected demonstration trip to Mexico, reaching Fort Worth, however, the lure of the Miami gathering was too enticing and he retraced his steps to be on hand for the opening of the festivities. He came in by way of Murfreesboro to avoid a low-pressure area moving eastward from Texas and north Louisiana.

Other visitors for the day included another Lycoming Stinson, flown by W. G. Barton and with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. East, returning to Indianapolis after a visit of several weeks at Daytona Beach, Fla.; Eugene Cernan, in an OX Waco "10", on his way to Miami; and Bob Allen, pilot, and Merle Doolley, in a Kinney-powered American Eagle sport job, bound for the same destination. Allen and Doolley are from Oklahoma City. Vray Smith, of Blinnfield, brought his Bolanca biplane here to be checked over by Curtiss-Wright mechanics and during that period will stop with his brother, Roy Smith, who lives and flies here.

The Atlanta Miami-bound contingent got off for the races in good style, and, weather permitting, all should be among those present when the action starts this morning. The group includes Gus Leazer and E. C. Sutton, in a Travel Air; Stanley Boles and "Pop" Hanscom, in a Travel Air;

Youth Hurt in Crash In Critical Condition

Harry Bone, Jr., 21-year-old senior at Emory University, who suffered a compound fracture of the left leg and other injuries Sunday night in the automobile accident which caused the death of Ashbury Farr, 23, pre-medical student at Emory, was forced to undergo amputation of the leg Wednesday at Wesley Memorial hospital. Though his condition is critical, hope is entertained for his recovery by attending doctors.

The two young men, fraternity brothers, were returning with another friend, Alton Rogers, 21, a senior at Georgia Tech, from week-end visits to their homes at Milledgeville and Tignall when their car was struck and overturned by a hit-and-run driver on the Dixie highway between Hampton and Lovejoy. Farr, pinned beneath the wreckage, was crushed to death. Bone and Rogers were picked up by a north-bound Central of Georgia train and rushed to Wesley Memorial hospital, where Rogers later was said to be in favorably Wednesday night.

F. von Herrmann, meteorologist, issued Wednesday, said. A maximum temperature "in the forties" is predicted with the minimum at about 38, the weather observer said. Wednesday's minimum recorded in the early morning was 31 degrees.

"To me, hair is a valuable asset" says a business man

"Personally, I consider hair a very valuable asset," a successful business man told us. "An asset for which there is no substitute. A faultlessly tailored suit and a tastily chosen cravat help to give a man that 'successful look,' but the picture is not complete unless he has a good head of hair. We unconsciously associate youth and manly vigor with a good head of hair."

There is no reason why you, too, cannot have this precious asset—a good head of hair. CONFEREES BREAK SHOALS DEADLOCK

Montana's Walsh Engenders Stiff Opposition to Power Commission.

BY HERBERT LITTLE.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Turning points in two major "power" issues came in congress today. Senate conferees won a tentative agreement from house members for the great wartime plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala. The issue has been deadlocked for a year. A fight on the house floor and a possible presidential veto, remain as obstacles to final enactment of the Norris bill for settling the 10-year-old controversy by an experiment in government operation of a public utility.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Coughs

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspirin, the two-minute relief for colds and coughs due to colds. Authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk sixty cents for a bottle of Aspirin and tell him to serve you two spoonfuls. With your commission's chief accountant, William V. King, and its solicitor, Charles A. Russell, "for doing their duty."

Senate Should Decide.
Robinson said the senate should decide this question, now in its third day of debate, on the basis of "common sense, not technicality" and he challenged the technical defense put up by Senator Guy D. Goff, republican, West Virginia, who argued that the senate's jurisdiction was ended when President Hoover issued commissions and the three men took their oaths of office.

Goff argued that the senate rule allowing reconsideration in the two executive sessions following confirmation was unconstitutional. He said taking the oath of office gave the men a vested right which could be removed only by impeachment. He refused to argue the merits of the discharge of Russell and King, telling Robinson, "Impeach them if they have been guilty of misconduct."

Senator Charles L. McNary, republican, Oregon, attempted to fix an hour tomorrow to vote on the reconsideration motion but anti-commission senators blocked this effort, indicating they wished to speak at length on the matter.

McNary then refused to permit adjournment this afternoon at the regular hour and kept the senate in session until after 5 p. m.

Under the bill as agreed upon, preference is granted to states and municipalities, which may build their own transmission lines to Muscle Shoals, or the government corporation which is created by the bill can build its own lines, either from congressional appropriations or from funds obtained from sale of power. At present the entire power output is sold to the Alabama Power Company at low rates, and resold by that company to private and public consumers.

Ways and Means Group Considers Revenue-Raising Plans

Members of the house ways and means committee which Wednesday afternoon began consideration of plans for raising $5,000,000 by selling W. & A. rentals to the state highway board. Chairman J. W. Cullen, sponsor for this plan, is the tall man in the front row, and on his right is Representative W. W. Battle, of Muscogee. On his left is Representative J. Ralph Rosser, of Walker county, official "adjourner" of the house. Ed Dykes, president of the 1927 senate, also is shown in the picture.

He insisted would keep the railroad rentals "in the family," was the only plan he knew by which the legislature could promptly meet the deficit. Instead of discounting the rentals through banks, as many members of the committee indicated they thought should be done, the Culpepper proposal would vest title to the rentals in the state highway board for $5,000,000 and let the highway board "if and when it becomes necessary" hypothecate the rentals to banks if it required funds to match federal aid projects or to keep road construction going in the state.

The attack on Chairman Culpepper's plan, and his "hand-picking" of the pre-session group, brought vigorous retort from Representative W. W. Battle, of Columbus, who declared that if it had not been for the Culpepper proposal he would have introduced his own plan—only it's sugar-coated now.

"Settled by the People."

"This question has been settled by the people of Georgia and settled in no uncertain fashion," Edwards said. "And this special session has been called here by Governor Hardman and his henchmen to perpetuate George Cawwell in office. He wants to create a tax commission and pay George at the head of it. I am everlastingly opposed to crippling the highway department."

Edwards' charge that Chairman Culpepper had hand-picked the dozen members who came here Monday and who, participants afterwards explained, considered incidentally a soft-drink and amusement tax bill drafted by Comptroller General William B. Harrison, was met with the statement that the dozen men, instead of considering the revenue bill, were summoned here to prevail upon Governor Hardman to make changes in the original draft of his proclamation so that the special session might function.

The attack on Chairman Culpepper's plan, and his "hand-picking" of the pre-session group, brought vigorous retort from Representative W. W. Battle, of Columbus, who declared that if it had not been for the Culpepper proposal he would have introduced his own plan—only it's sugar-coated now.

"Settled by the People."
"This question has been settled by the people of Georgia and settled in no uncertain fashion," Edwards said. "And this special session has been called here by Governor Hardman and

After extended references had been made by committee members to Governor-elect Russell—and after several members had declared they supported him in the campaign and expected to support him in the general assembly—the Battle motion to name a committee to draft the W. & A. rental bill was offered and seconded by Representative Edwards.

It was at this point that Representative John M. Simmons, Democrat, warned the committee to "stop playing politics" and get down to business. He declared that he came here to help raise the money to pay off the deficit and that the people of Georgia "are expecting us to get our heads together and raise the $5,000,000 now."

Most of the revenue measures, Simmons said, will not succeed in raising the money for some time and he joined in the support which the Culpepper proposal had received from other members.

Tax Bills Offered.

With the suggestion that the politics be eschewed for the duration of the special session, Mr. Culpepper announced his own sympathy and placed a motion to adjourn the committee until today when it will probably take up the revenue measures which have been introduced.

These include Representative Harry Kennedy's bill to place a 2-mil tax per kilowatt hour on all hydro-electric power sold in the state; a 4 per cent tax on gross receipts in excess of $50,000 of telephone or telegraph companies, or both, and a 10-cent tax per 1,000 units of gas on all natural or artificial gas sold in the state.

No estimate of the amount the tax on power would yield has been given to the ways and means committee, but representatives of companies that would be affected already have asked for a hearing.

Considered even more far-reaching than the Kennedy bill, but not directly levying a tax, is the bill sponsored by Representative Bennett, of Clarke county, to amend the general tax act so as to provide that all public service corporations shall set up and establish valuations before the comptroller general for tax purposes, and providing that such valuations shall be the only valuation used by the Georgia public service commission on which to base rates.

Schools Study Planned.

The measure, sweeping because of the assumed discrepancies now between the tax valuations and rate fixing valuations furnished to the commission, also was sent to the ways and means committee.

While the house, in a short morning session, was receiving its new revenue measures, the senate was adopting a resolution introduced by Senators Ford, of the tenth, and Dorsey, of the forty-eighth, which called for the appointment of a joint committee of five from the two houses to confer with the state superintendent of schools and determine what emergency, "if any," exists in the public schools.

M. L. Dugan, state superintendent of schools, said that the department will welcome any investigation of school matters by the legislature, and will co-operate to the fullest extent with any committee appointed by the general assembly.

The senate also adopted a resolution offered by Senator W. L. McClumray, of the 17th; Seaborn Wright, of the 12th; George W. Lankford, of the 42d; E. R. King, of the 11th; A. J. Nichols, of the 3d; R. Paulk, of the 47th; H. F. Lawson, of the 14th; J. C. Brewer, of the 48th; Charles D. Terrell, of the 38th, and W. T. Lane, of the 13th.

This bill, which was Senate Bill No. 1, would divert $5,000,000 of highway funds to the general treasury to be paid to the general fund in four quarterly installments of $1,250,000 each during 1931. In the house Representative W. L. Walker, of Bay Hill county, offered a bill to divert $8,000,000 of auto tag tax funds collected in 1930 and 1931 to the general treasury in payments of $3,000,000 each.

Other house measures included Representative Culpepper's proposal to clarify the Confederate pensioners' act of 1929 and provide for payment of $30 per month instead of $50 per quarter, to the veterans.

The 1929 session authorized the $30 per month payments, but failed to specify appropriate the money for payments on this basis and, when asked by Governor Hardman, Attorney General George M. Napier ruled that the payments would have to be $50 per quarter.

Mr. Culpepper's plan contemplates the use of $800,000, which he estimates is sufficient to pay the veterans' pensioners on the increased basis from the income tax collections for 1930.

Representative Beasley, of Tatnall, was the author of the house resolution to increase the income tax rate from one-third of the federal brackets to two-thirds.

From Representative Maynard, of Sumter county, came a bill providing for the equal and pro-rated distribution of all revenue of the state with all moneys going into the general treasury and being distributed proportionately in accordance with legislative appropriations.

The house adjourned until 10 and the senate until 11 o'clock today.

ROTARIANS HONOR H. N. HUTCHINSON

As a tribute to his former services as president of the Atlanta Rotary Club, past presidents of the club Wednesday night tendered a farewell dinner to Herbert N. Hutchinson, for the last 15 years widely known leader in civic affairs, who Saturday will leave for New York to assume the post to which he has been promoted by the American Surety Company, of New York.

The dinner, given at the Capital City Club, was attended by a group of past presidents of the Atlanta Rotary Club, and given tribute was paid to Mr. Hutchinson by several speakers. William C. Wardlaw presided.

Mr. Hutchinson, for the last 15 years manager of the local offices of the American Surety Company of New York, in December was made superintendent of production of the entire insurance field of that concern in North America. He was executive chairman of the 1931 Atlanta Community Chest campaign, the only drive of its kind in the city's history ever to be oversubscribed.

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID TO MARSHAL JOFFRE

PARIS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—France, in a final tribute of love and respect to the "savior" of Paris today gave Marshal Joffre a national funeral which in its grandeur reminded of that "day of ashes" when the body of Napoleon Bonaparte was brought back from St. Helena.

Tonight the body of the valiant victor of the Marne lay, like that of Napoleon, under the great dome of the Invalides, in a disused sacristy of the chapel of St. Louis, dedicated to the old crusader king. It was placed there so that Madame Joffre might pray beside her soldier husband in silence.

Some months from now the body will be transferred to Champs-Elysees, the marshal's country home, where it will be entombed in a mausoleum like that of Washington at Mt. Vernon.

Church and state united to make the last rites of France's loved soldier a full expression of the republic's gratitude and respect. The thousands of French people who filled the gray old cathedral of Notre Dame and the million or more who lined the route of the cortege from the cathedral to the Invalides testified abundantly the love that Paris bore for "Papa" Joffre.

There was not a foot of standing room at Notre Dame when the arrival of President Doumergue signaled the beginning of the requiem mass, shortened at Joffre's own request. After the services, the cortege formed in the square in front of the cathedral, republican guardsmen in the lead. On either side of the coffin marched a company of infantry and behind, after the marshal's immediate entourage, marched the president, members of the government, and the diplomatic corps, among them, the latter, Walter E. Edge, American ambassador.

Then there were military detachments from all the allied and associated powers, including one of 24 United States officers, active and reserve, who represented the American army.

An orderly led "Sorciere," the marshal's horse, caparisoned in black. Louis Barthou, minister of war, paid the government's eulogy. He hailed Joffre as a "savior of world liberty," and said that he was there to "voice the unanimous gratitude of the nation."

After the funeral oration the marshal's body was borne solemnly to the sacristy where it will remain until the mausoleum at Louveciennes is ready.

but he did not say at that time that he thought Hewell was drunk.

In his statement to the jury, Hewell testified that he went with Goode to the Minsk shop after receiving a call from Harry Minsk, who reported to police headquarters that he and his brother were having trouble over some soda-water bottles Harry Minsk claimed were stolen from him.

Hewell's Statement.
"On entering the store I approached a man behind the counter whom I thought to be Jake Minsk and he wrapped some meat in a bundle for a customer and then picked up a long butcher knife and started along behind the counter toward an opening. His wife shouted 'Stop, Jake,' and when he started toward the opening toward me I fired three shots.

Hewell, whose statement was very brief, said that he had met Harry Minsk outside the store and that the brother had said Jake was dangerous. Witnesses for the state, testifying during the opening day of the trial, Tuesday and Wednesday morning had declared to the jury that there was no quarrel between the two men. Hewell's second and third shots, that he shot the butcher first as he was standing in the opening at the end of his counter, a second time as he was falling and a third time as he was prone on the floor.

Bullet Found in Can.
The state had rested its case against Hewell shortly before the noon recess, after Assistant Solicitor Ed. A. Stephens had taken the stand and testified that from his investigation it was apparent to him that the shot which killed Minsk had been fired while the butcher still was behind the counter of his store.

"I found a bullet in a can on a shelf in the rear of the counter which could not have reached there had Minsk been in front of the counter when the shot was fired," Stephens testified. "The bullet apparently had passed through Minsk's body and imbedded itself in the can."

Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, who is directing the prosecution, said Wednesday night that the state's additional testimony to be presented today would not require more than an hour. Trial Judge E. D. Thomas is to limit the argument to two hours to the side, making it probable that the jury will have the case early this afternoon.

SLAYS WIFE, DAUGHTER AND COMMITTS SUICIDE

APOLLO, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A mill worker, Blaine Crawford, 45, penned a note today in which he described himself as "heartbroken" by misfortunes and then killed his wife, Ada, 40; his daughter, Eleanor, 15, and committed suicide by shooting a bullet into his head after cutting his throat. The wife and daughter were shot and their throats slashed.

The tragedy was discovered by an 11-year-old son, on his return from school.

'PAY-LOAD' PILOTS REACH BERMUDA

Mrs. Hart and MacLaren Hope To Make Azores on Next Hop.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The white monoplane Tradewind, washed by rain that was driven before a strong northwest wind, sped down out of gray skies to a safe landing in Hamilton harbor this afternoon, completing the first leg of a pay-load flight from Norfolk, Va., to Paris.

Its motor roared again almost as soon as the pontoons touched the water, and its red-haired woman pilot, Mrs. Beryl Hart, drove the plane upward from the choppy seas and flew to a safer spot in front of the hangar on Hinson's island.

Mrs. Hart and her navigator, Lieutenant William S. MacLaren, appearing fresh and untired after their long journey, stepped into a waiting motor boat and proceeded to a hotel where they were greeted by a large crowd that had scanned the skies for their arrival.

The landing was made at 1:55 p. m. (12:35 eastern standard time) 6 hours and 35 minutes after the take-off from Hampton Roads.

Slight oil trouble developed during the flight, which is to be continued by way of the Azores as soon as repairs are made, but it was insufficient to hamper the functioning of the motor.

The side of the plane was splattered with oil and mechanics tonight prepared to locate the cause of the leak. Shortly after the plane climbed into the sky and pointed eastward at Hampton Roads at daybreak this morning, MacLaren said bumpy winds were encountered, and occasional rains occurred.

The skies were cloudy, and during most of the trip the ship kept close to the sea that heaved in mountainous swells before the strong wind.

Mrs. Hart held the controls most of the way with MacLaren navigating, which he found extremely difficult on account of the poor visibility.

Excited over their safe arrival after Saturday's disappointment, when the two fliers were forced to turn back and land in Hampton Roads after taking off from New York, Mrs. Hart and MacLaren were eager tonight to continue to the Azores as soon as the plane is ready, which may be tomorrow.

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. It is always liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

Kiwanis Trustees, Officers Outline Program for Year

Fred C. W. Parker, Chicago, International Secretary, and W. T. Anderson Speak at Macon Meeting.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(P)—Trustees and officers of the Georgia district, Kiwanis International, meeting here Wednesday outlined a program for the year's activities, heard addresses by Fred C. W. Parker, Chicago, international secretary; W. T. Anderson, Macon publisher and president of the Macon Rotary Club, and others, adopted a budget for 1931 and accepted the recommendation of their executive committee for a place and time of the district convention.

The state meeting will be held at Gainesville October 7, 8 and 9. The trustees were urged to persuade members of their clubs to attend the international convention in Miami May 24. At the conclusion of the meeting, District Governor Fred H. Sneed, Atlanta, who presided, announced the district committee for 1931.

"Generally speaking," said Mr. Parker, "We have accomplished a definite advance during the year. I believe we can enter into this new year of administration with a genuine spirit of confidence."

Mr. Parker spoke at some length on the training of Kiwanis leaders and the "keeping alive of the spirit of Kiwanis expansion."

O. A. Pound, Jackson, a past district governor, chairman of the efficiency committee, also spoke during the morning.

Urges Diversified Farming. At the dinner, Mr. Anderson was introduced by Mr. Sneed, toastmaster. The speaker urged diversified farming, cash crops and cash markets, and the co-operation of banks and agricultural agents. He told of the progress made in Colquitt county, where the "Moultrie plan" was said to have been operated so successfully that the county hasn't a vacant farm and Moultrie hasn't a vacant house. Mr. Anderson recited a list of support his assertions. Georgia today is buying $100,000,000 worth of food from outside the state, Mr. Anderson said.

"Suppose we had that $100,000,000 in Georgia today," he declared. "Do you suppose we would know anything about a panic?"

Further committee reports were made by G. C. Thompson, Manchester, on attendance and how it can be increased, and Tom O. Marshall, Americus, on Kiwanis education.

G. L. Collier, Fitzgerald, agricultural agent of the A. B. & C. railroad, presented a resolution recommending that the trustees favor a plan for railroads, public utilities and loan agencies of the state to pool funds for publicizing the state. The recommendation was referred favorably to the state publicity committee.

Budget Adopted. The trustees adopted a budget of $3,275. Three hundred dollars was appropriated for publication of a bulletin. A calendar for the year was adopted.

The program includes a continuation of the club's work for underprivileged children, "a more active effort in behalf of the farmer," efforts to procure better roads, and renewed efforts to increase membership and improve attendance.

The new officers for the year are: J. E. Tudor, chancellor; J. E. Griffin, vice chancellor; L. A. Holcombe, president; J. L. Singhal, master of finance; C. R. Jones, master at arms; George Lahey, inner guard; J. H. Wimberly, outer guard.

BELL'S SELF-DEFENSE PLEA CORROBORATED

South Macon Merchant Contradicts Story of State Witnesses.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(P)—Contradictory versions of the fatal woundings last July 12 of Robert B. Hendon, 28-year-old traveling salesman, were given a jury in Bibb superior court Wednesday as the trial of W. F. Bell, the slayer, on a murder charge advanced toward its end.

The story of the slaying as told Tuesday by witnesses for the state was shattered by testimony of the actual occurrence as related from the witness stand by Harry Sample, south Macon merchant, who said he was on the scene at the time.

Sample's testimony supported the contention of Bell that he shot in self-defense after Hendon, riding toward Macon, in a salesman's enclosed truck with three others, had attempted to run down Mrs. Bell with the automobile.

Adjournment was declared at 6 o'clock until 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning. It is expected that the case will go to the jury late Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Sample, the second witness for the defense, followed W. F. Bell, Jr., 15, to the stand. The latter related incidents at the Echecoonne camp, entered by Bell, telling the jury that he saw the party—Hendon, H. L. Payne, Mrs. Lee Smith and Mrs. P. C. Smith—coming in a livery from camp cottage they had rented for the day.

Hendon was fatally wounded when the party, after spending the day at the Echecoonne camp, was returning to Macon. He died August 6. Evidence submitted by the state Tuesday showed that Bell fired at Hendon as he passed his camp at Seven Bridges without cause or provocation, and on the belief that a small quantity of personal goods were stolen from the cottage at his other camp.

SAVANNAH,

The ARITHMETIC of GOOD ADVERTISING

THE square below graphs the American market in terms of 122,693,391 population, but if you buy magazine advertising on that basis your pencil isn't very sharp:

First of all, the square needs to be shrunk to the total number of families, 29,000,000 — like this:

Then it needs to be shrunk again to the families which mentally are directly reachable, somewhere near 11,500,000 families in which some adult is above 14 years in intelligence — like this:

Then it needs to be shrunk once more to the families which have ample current money to spend, the families from which the 4,062,804 income tax returns were filed—like this:

PONDER that smallest square, gentlemen, for there is the heart and hope of prosperity—the bull's-eye of the sales target in America.

It does not represent all the business, of course, but it does represent the cream of it.

It does not encompass the whole advertising audience by any means, but it does highlight its most responsive section.

Most important to the advertiser, it is the power-plant and central-station of American public opinion, motivating national thought, national taste, national acceptance, national sales!

THE arithmetic of good advertising in this day and age is simply figuring maximum advertising pressure against this preferential market at minimum cost.

Because THE SATURDAY EVENING POST reaches the first three million families in America, with tested sales-power solidly grounded on tested character, it stands alone as the great Common Denominator in any such equation!

FULTON TEACHERS' PAY HIKE SOUGHT

Placing of Members on 12-Month Basis Asked by Leaders.

The county board of education, through its president, Cam Dorsey, and Superintendent Jere A. Wells, Wednesday called upon the board of commissioners for an increased 1931 appropriation of $55,000 to raise the salaries of county school teachers.

Members of the board, although they did not reject the school group's plea, said there was little possibility that the additional funds would be obtained because of the county's bad financial condition. The matter, however, was sent to the finance committee which will meet with Mr. Dorsey and Mr. Wells to study the situation some time today.

In making for the increased appropriation Mr. Dorsey said that in all other leading counties in Georgia and other states the teachers are paid on a 12-month basis, while in Fulton county they are paid for only 11 months. The $55,000 asked is the monthly pay roll of the teachers, he said.

Commissioner Edward H. Inman, chairman of the county board's finance committee, said he doubted that the board would be able to allow the additional sum to the schools. Other commissioners joined in this opinion, but all agreed they would "do what they could for the teachers."

In outlining his appeal Mr. Dorsey said that he was acting only after several conferences with officials of the teachers' association and the Federation of Labor, with which the teachers are affiliated, and was convinced that the Fulton teachers are getting less pay than those elsewhere.

"The county school board operates its system efficiently and economically, but we believe that the teachers should have the additional salary," Mr. Dorsey said. "Our building and repair program has been budgeted to the minimum and it is not permitted to give the teachers the increases it will not mean a great deal in the general cost of the upkeep of the schools for the year."

U. S. COURT ASPIRANTS UNDER CONSIDERATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 7.—Department of justice officials here have known today that consideration of applicants for the vacancy in the United States district court for the northern district of Georgia has reached the point yet where the assistant attorney-general in charge of appointments is prepared to submit a recommendation to Attorney-General Mitchell.

This is taken to mean that an appointment to fill the office, made vacant by the elevation of Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of Atlanta, to the United States fifth circuit court of appeals, will not be made for a week or ten days.

The procedure calls for an initial investigation of applicants by Assistant Attorney-General Sisson, who makes a report to Attorney-General Mitchell on those considered for the post. The attorney-general in turn makes a recommendation for the guidance of the president.

Meantime the fight that is developing for the important judicial office has been intensified by the arrival in Washington of state republic leaders seeking the appointment of United States District Attorney Clint W. Hager, of Atlanta, and others urging the selection of Barry Wright, of Rome, the two most conspicuous contenders for the post.

Collector of Internal Revenue Josiah T. Rose, of Atlanta, leader of the republican organization forces of the state, arrived in Washington yesterday and was followed today by Collector of Customs M. O. Duane, of Savannah. Mr. Rose went to New York last night but was expected back late today. Both are understood to be identified with Mr. Hager's candidacy for the judgeship.

As for Mr. Wright, who was one of the leaders in the independent movement in behalf of the Hoover-Curtis ticket in Georgia two years ago, a delegation of lawyers from the district is asked to come to Washington this week in his behalf.

District Attorney Hager himself is expected before the end of the week also, according to information received by members of the state congressional group during the day.

It continued to be the consensus of persons informed on the Georgia judgeship situation today that Mr. Hager has been all but definitely eliminated from the contest because of open opposition expected by Georgia labor leaders in connection with the National Federation of Labor officials.

Vilma Banky and Rod LaRocque In Person at Erlanger Tonight

VILMA BANKY

The names concerned with the personal appearance here of the two screen stars, Vilma Banky and Rod LaRocque, in "Cherries Are Ripe," opening a three-day stay at the Erlanger theater tonight, augur well for this entertainment.

First of all there is Arch Selwyn, the producer, whose contributions to the American stage have been on the side of smart and sophisticated plays. He has brought to these shores many English plays and musical comedies. It was he who brought over Charles B. Clary, starring Beatrice Lillie, Gertrude Lawrence and Jack Buchanan; also "This Year of Grace," a worldly-wise opus which set New York talking.

Besides Mr. Selwyn, there are the authors, John Emerson and Anita Loos, known throughout the country for their countless scenarios, as well as their comedy, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

The name of Constant Collier, who directed "Cherries Are Ripe," is well known to theatergoers, both as an actress of note as well as a director. The translation from the original Hungarian, upon which Miss Banky and Mr. LaRocque's play is based, is by S. I. Richter, who has, perhaps, made more translations of foreign plays than any other author in America. The setting of the play was designed by Chamberlain Dodds.

A matinee performance will be given on Saturday. Seats for the entire engagement are now on sale at the box office.

Originally a member from Coffee county, Stewart moved to Atkinson county and in 1923 was elected to sit in the 1929 legislature. He sat in the regular session. Meantime, he moved back to his old home and since then has been elected, again, to serve in the session of 1931 as a member from Coffee.

The constitution of Georgia, authorities on that document declare, says that when a member of the house moves from one county to another he forfeits his legislative rights and the seat is vacant until a special election is called.

But Mr. Stewart is on the job and is understood to have informed friends that he is not only prepared to fight to retain his seat, but, retaining it, is willing to serve the people of Atkinson, Coffee and the rest of Georgia right on up to the day the regular session meets.

Confirmation of 25 appointments of Governor Hardman, including that of Captain J. W. Barnett, of Athens, as state highway commission chairman, was voted unanimously Wednesday by the state senate.

Captain Barnett succeeded Colonel Sam Tate in May of last year following Colonel Tate's resignation. Captain Barnett's term expires in 1933. Other appointments and dates of expiration follow: Byron Bower, Decatur county, 1937; C. D. Brown, Cobb county, 1935; Dr. J. Walter Hendricks, Chatham county, 1937; University of Georgia trustees: W. R. Neal, Chatham county, 1936; Dr. A. D. Little, Thomas county, 1936; Dr. M. M. Parks, Lowndes county, 1937; Dr. James G. Williams, Gwinnett county, 1937; board of health members: Dr. O. R. Howard, Screven county, 1934; R. E. Roundtree, Emanuel county, 1934; South Georgia Teachers College trustees: Gordon W. Chambers, Richmond county, 1933; August city court judge: Dr. T. H. WARD-REDUCTION BILL TO BE DRAWN Eckford Is Working on Measure To Amend Charter of Atlanta.

A bill to amend Atlanta's charter by reducing the number of wards from 13 to 6 and the number of members of general council from 36 to 18 will be drawn by George Eckford, member of the Fulton delegation in the next legislature, within the next few days for presentation to the general assembly in June, he announced Wednesday.

The bill will provide for a referendum of the people on the plan contained in it for re-districting of the wards, Eckford said. "I would not make such a drastic change in the city ward lines without giving the people an opportunity of approving the new ward lines," he stated.

Eckford said he will introduce the bill to be drawn by himself, and also will introduce a bill submitted to him by the mayor and council, and will give the people the choice of two plans, if they differ.

Eckford's plan for re-districting includes wards composed as follows: First: The entire eighth and ninth, tenth and portions of the fourth and fifth. Second: The entire fifth and portions of the first and sixth. Third: The entire sixth and portions of the first and second. Fourth: The entire third and portions of the second and sixth. Fifth: The entire fourth and portions of the first and sixth. Sixth: The entire eleventh and twelfth and portions of the fourth and fifth.

The plan will include residential and business areas for all wards, Eckford said.

The proposal to reduce the size of council and number of wards was ratified by Atlanta in a referendum held recently. Eckford said that the second referendum would be for approval or rejection of the reduction plan as laid out by the legislature.

CHEST ASKS COUNTY FOR FUND OF $101,500

The Atlanta Community Chest, through its president, E. A. Thorne, well known executive director, Frank Miller, Wednesday asked the board of county commissioners for a 1931 appropriation of $101,500, which is $5,500 more than the $92,000 appropriation made last year by the board.

In requesting the increase Mr. Thorne said that the chest was under unusually heavy expense this year because of business conditions and asked that the full amount be given.

Commissioner Walter C. Hendrix, newly elected chairman of the board, informed the chest representatives that the board is operating on an economic policy but that he would refer the chest appeal to the finance committee for inquiry and report.

TWO INJURED IN FIRE, ELEVEN FLEE BUILDING
Fire believed to have originated from the careless handling of an oil lamp early Wednesday morning forced eleven persons to flee in their night clothing from a boarding house operated by Mrs. Fanny Jolly, 36 Delta Place N. E. Two of the boarders received slight injuries making their way from the burning building, when they leaped or fell from second-story level.

C. R. Holloway, a railroad man, fell 15 feet to the ground, being knocked unconscious and bruising his leg, and E. S. Burdick received severe cuts on his legs escaping through a window. Six fire companies responded to the alarms and the fire was extinguished without great difficulty. Damage to the residence was confined to the kitchen, where the blaze apparently originated, and to other sections of the first floor. No estimate was made.

Poet's Sense of Humor Defended By Arthur Guiterman, Noted Writer

The fear of not being taken seriously when they want to be, keeps many poets from giving public expression to their more humorous thoughts.

Arthur Guiterman, widely known poet, who was in Atlanta Wednesday to address the Fine Arts Club, advanced this defense in behalf of fellow followers of the muse in answer to the charge that the lack of a sense of humor seemed characteristic of a large portion of devotees of the rhythmic literary art.

Mr. Guiterman, who has attained distinction in both the humorous and serious fields of poetry, admitted that many years ago he was confronted with the same problem when preparing to publish a volume of his humorous verse.

"My solution to the question, 'Shall I risk the reputation of poet by publishing verse with a jocular note?' was to decide to write about things that interested me and that I thought would interest others, without regard as to how I might be classified or pigeon-holed," Mr. Guiterman explained, maintaining that poets are regular fellows and not devoid of humor, although conscientious and sincere in their calling.

Although most popularly known for his lively lyrical wit, Mr. Guiterman has obtained high recognition for his more serious writings in verse. Perhaps his most widely distributed collection of poems is "The Laughing Muse." Much of his serious writing is widely scattered and for that reason is not readily associated with the name Guiterman among poetry readers. He has been urged to collect these and contemplate doing so, he said Wednesday.

Discussing the trend of poetry in America, the prominent literary figure asserted that increased individuality was the principal present-day characteristic. The fad of free verse, imitated by some writers in an effort to appear modernistic, was seen by Mr. Guiterman to be on the wane, with the tendency noticeable for return to the beauty of cadence, rhyme and metric form. While any verse is difficult to do well, free verse is the least exacting, being more or less a revision to barbarism and disjointed prose, the poet declared in disposing of this phase of so-called modernism in poetry.

While any verse is difficult to do well, free verse is the

Like his reputation as a writer, which has given no sign of waning popularity in the long period of public presentation, the man, keen of eye and spry of movement, gave no indication of his three-score years. True to the jingle that has been used by Mr. Guiterman's friends as an aid to the correct pronunciation of his name: "There ain't no better, fitter man Than Mister Arthur Guiterman."

WHITE UNIT PRAISES JOHNSTON AND LEWIS

Grady Staff Extends Vote of Confidence to Both Officials.

Declaring it feels "an injustice has been done Grady hospital and its management" through recommendations of the Fulton county grand jury that Steve R. A Clock, A Candle
And Jar of Vicks

Missionary in Far-away China
Keeps Vicks by Bedside.

"I am more thankful than I can express," writes Mrs. Grace B. Sears, Baptist Missionary at Pingting, China, "for all the help your wonderful product has been to me. By the side of my bed, on a small table is my clock, a candle and Vicks—I would not go to sleep without having it just where it can be reached easily in the dark." Mrs. Sears is one of many enthusiastic Vicks users who take advantage of the various ways to use it most effectively for different types of cold troubles.

Protective Measures.
Most colds start in the nose or throat. The next time you feel the slightest irritation, sniff some Vicks up the nose, or, if the throat is affected, dissolve a bit on the tongue every few hours, like a cough drop. This puts a coating of medication on the irritated membrane and often checks a cold at the start.

For Stronger Vapors.
In "stuffy" head colds or where there is much phlegm and coughing, melt a teaspoonful of Vicks in a bowl of boiling water and inhale its steaming, medicated vapors. This quickly clears the air-passages and usually brings comforting relief in five minutes.

Rub on at Bedtime.
And, of course, to get its long-continued stimulation and inhalation effect while you sleep, rub on throat and chest and cover with warm flannel cloth.

Missionaries all over the world have for years found Vicks ideal for treating every type of cold. To get the most out of your little blue jar, read the Directions Folder in your next package of Vicks—Advt.

IT IS OR IT ISN'T

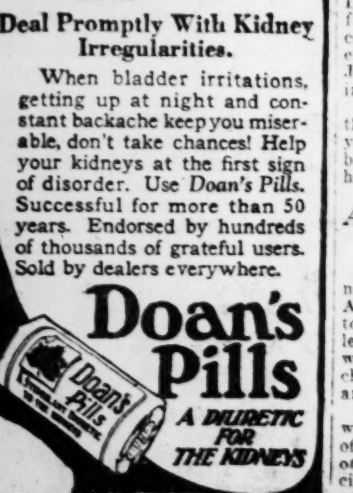

One of the greatest medical developments along popular lines has been in the use of aspirin. Until today it has come into more general use than quinine. Just as quinine is quinine or is not quinine—as aspirin is either aspirin or it is not aspirin. The medical profession and public alike have learned to depend upon St. Joseph's Pure Aspirin because of its guaranteed purity and conformity to every government standard. The fact that more than nine million boxes of St. Joseph's Pure Aspirin are used per year is definite proof that thousands of people know that it is neither sensible or necessary to pay more than 10c for one dozen pure aspirin tablets. St. Joseph's Pure Aspirin is sold everywhere for ten cents for twelve five grain tablets in convenient tin. One of the reasons that have made St. Joseph's Pure Aspirin the largest selling aspirin in the world for ten cents is that it is so generally known in medical circles that the manufacturers of St. Joseph's Pure Aspirin guarantee that it's as pure as money can buy.

ITCHING ENDS WHEN ZEMO TOUCHES SKIN

—thousands say. It's wonderful the way soothing, cooling Zemo brings relief to skin which itches and burns. Even in most severe cases, itching disappears almost as soon as Zemo touches the tender and inflamed surface. To draw out local infection and help to clear away unsightly lesions, we know of nothing better than invisible Zemo. Always keep this family antiseptic on hand. Use it freely. It's safe as can be seen, 5c and $1.00. All dealers.—adv.

that in addition to extending a vote of confidence, they extended congratulations to Johnston and Lewis "upon their earnestness, efficiency, and untiring efforts to make this a good and well qualified hospital for the care of the sick, and since the daily per capita cost has been less than $3 per day, we feel sure that the management has been economically handled."

Johnston has been superintendent of the institution for a dozen years, and formerly was a member of general council.

In recommending that the management be changed, the grand jury stated it was for the purpose of placing the institution under more efficient and competent management.

'Hit-Run' Drive
Spurred by Offer
Of $100 Reward

Offer of a standing reward of $100 for information leading to the arrest of hit-and-run drivers of death cars was made Wednesday by the Atlanta Motor Club as another feature of the club's organized efforts to stem the rising tide of deaths and injuries from this source. The offer, following a series of recent tragedies caused by drivers who sped on, leaving their victims to die by the roadside, represents a 50 per cent increase over the sum offered last year for similar information.

Perfecting its plans by which it hopes to rid the city and state of irresponsible drivers, the Motor Club will sponsor a committee meeting at 10 o'clock Friday morning at its headquarters, 336 West Peachtree street. Jere E. Wells, superintendent of city schools, will be the principal speaker, his subject being the proposed drivers' license law, which is supported by the Motor Club and other outstanding organizations.

Critically wounded, a revolver lying nearby, Mr. Eakins was discovered early Tuesday morning on the sleeping porch of his home by his wife. He died several hours later at a private hospital.

AN APPLE OF DISCORD.

The general assembly has been convened in extraordinary session primarily to deal with the pressing fiscal deficiencies of the state. The body is confronted with a momentous problem, calling for expert business skill and careful statecraft.

It must be regarded as unfortunate that at the outset there is thrust upon it a question that was regarded as definitely settled by the people in the late contest for the governorship.

The salient issue then was whether any more of the highway funds than now applied to other departments, should in any way be drawn upon to pay the current debts of the state.

That was, in fact, the crux of the contest between Candidate Russell and Candidate Carswell.

The people decided that issue against the diversion of the road funds by a great majority for Speaker Russell who vehemently opposed the diversion.

That was as solemn a referendum as the people of the state ever carried to a verdict.

Having been nominated for and elected governor, practically upon that paramount issue, Governor-elect Russell will of course stand by his campaign pledge, and if the general assembly regards the expressed will of the people it must hold the highway funds intact for road purposes.

To bring the question again into legislative discussion is to throw an apple of discord into the serious business of paying the state's debts and redeeming its solvency. So that apple of wrath should be resolutely and finally thrown out of the pending session.

ANOTHER JACKSON NEEDED.

Today is the 17th anniversary of the famous battle on the plain of Chalmette when "Old Hickory" Jackson beat the British under Pakenham, saved New Orleans from sack and the Mississippi valley from foreign conquest. It was one of the greatest victories for American valor and civilization.

Fourteen years later after a brilliant military career, governorships, judgeships, senatorships, Jackson was elected president of the United States in the communion of a nationwide revival of Jeffersonian democratic principles. For two terms he held the exalted office and made for the nation and himself records of peerless political wisdom, efficiency and glory.

In a brilliant speech in the senate, at the close of Jackson's political career, Senator Thomas H. Benton, of Missouri, graphically rehearsed all the denunciations, evil charges and dire predictions that accompanied Jackson in the presidency, and then showed how amazingly all of them had come to naught in face of the results of his eight years in office. That Benton speech is good and valuable reading for sensible and sensitive politicians of today.

Jackson was a born democrat of humble but heroic blood. He early betrayed his native qualities of courage, honesty and fidelity to every cause that he believed right and wholesome for his country. No man in our history gave more of himself and suffered more in his sensibilities for the supreme satisfaction of serving his people.

confidence and trust of the American people by adhering to its principles and by bravely challenging every false doctrine, every inequitable device in politics, and resolutely legislating for the welfare of the people. Those were the things he believed to be the makings of a virtuous and victorious public party, and he won splendid triumphs by standing foursquare for such a democratic party.

On this suggestive day, when all good democrats should stand uncovered awhile in memory of so eminent an apostle of their inherited principles, they should invoke his spirit to return to present day democratic councils, restore the ancient worship of the Jeffersonian faith, and endow the living leaders of the party to which he gave a new birth with good measures of his faithfulness to the public good and his courage to fight for it as he did for the nation's life.

THE BARKERS ARE BUSY.

A blind man unwittingly led into the gallery of either house of the congress and listening to what is going on below, might well imagine himself in a bench-show around feed time.

The principal occupation of congressmen just now is barking at everybody and everything in sight or beyond the horizon. The latest provocation for an outburst of such clamor is the transmission to congress by President Hoover of the tentative agreement to consolidate most of the eastern railway lines into four comprehensive trunk systems.

Congress enacted the transportation law, which has led to the merger agreement. At the time the big justification for the act was to secure economic and beneficial railway consolidations, under government regulation, reduce cut-throat railway competitions, lower rates to the shipping public and get better service in general.

Now that the once unwilling rail executives have come together, many of the very congressmen who supported the transportation act are barking their heads sore at the president for favoring the long-sought consolidation agreements.

THE SOUTH IN 1932.

Now that political polls are being trimmed to catch the winds blowing toward the national campaign of 1932, there is increasing speculation in the eastern and western presses concerning how the southern people may act in certain possible contingencies.

Much of the comment thus far is really uninformed and more or less absurd. It grows out of the abnormal happenings of the 1928 campaign and assumes that motives which operated erratically then will still be in action during the campaign of next year. Which is an assumption quite contrary to the political psychology and the post Civil War history of the southern people.

No well-informed politician in either party can doubt the firm and general adherence of the southern people to the democratic party organization. The spirit and policies of the republican party which were causes of great sufferings and unforgettable humiliations to the southern people made the southern states practically dependent upon the democratic party as their only hope of relief and defense.

Those are facts of indelible history. They admit of no denial and justify their natural effects. The times have changed, other relations between the sections have changed since the "reconstruction era" that disgraced American civilization, but the logical political antagonism to the republican party programs of government remain hereditary and confirmed in the general southern psychology.

Our understanding of that temperament is that it will reassert and reconfirm itself in the campaign of 1932.

The thought that issues of prohibition, farm export debentures, branch banking, motor bus control, or any other presently exploited political nostrum, will divide the people of the south and destroy the solidarity of their devotion to fundamental democratic doctrines is far beside the mark of probability.

The loss in 1928 from the democratic column of such states as Virginia, North Carolina, Florida and Texas was sensational, indeed, but subsequent events have proved that the secessions were spasmic and not radical. They are securely back in the democratic line, thoroughly disillusioned and disappointed with what they won by their temporary desertion, for it has been no compensation for their democratic expropriation.

The southern people will do their best to keep the democratic party nationally true to its landmarks, but in any event they are very sure to find that its program in 1932 is more consonant with their interests than anything emanating from their historic adversary, the republican party.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

St. Peter's Crypt.

In the crypt of St. Peter's Basilica, which is really the old church built by Constantine the Great, we stopped a moment to see the tomb of the cardinal Merry Del Val and his friend, Pope Pius X. The crypt, which is a few feet of the ground, is a very close to the place of St. Peter's execution and the graves of the early popes clustered around that of their predecessor "like bishops assisting at a synod."

It was here that Pope Paul V discovered in 1615 a number of bones wrapped in linen, who were thought to be those of the earliest martyred bishops of Rome. Here also is the sealed-up cave which was opened in 1934 when the floor of the crypt was being leveled. The workmen engaged at the time suddenly felt the floor give away and beheld what had been hidden for centuries—the grave of St. Peter, and upon it the golden cross given by Constantine the Great to the church of Rome.

Pope Clement VIII, accompanied by the cardinals, descended into the crypt and with the help of a torch, which he held aloft, he looked down upon the tomb of St. Peter, and upon it the golden cross given by Constantine the Great to the church of Rome.

The materials with which Clement the opening and rendered the tomb open and visible and, in fact, possible, can still be seen through the "cathart" below the altar. The crypt is more interesting from a historical Christian point of view than the pope's church, that stupendous edifice, for the erection of which a thousand priceless pagan temples were dismantled and destroyed.

To the Catholic it is one of the most sacred spots on earth, since it holds literally the words of St. Ambrose that "where the body of St. Peter is, there the church is, and where the church is, there is no death, but life eternal." (Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution.)

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

CONTINUOUS DRY DRAINAGE FOR CHRONIC RUNNING EAR.

For years we have been suggesting here, from time to time, some ear drops for persons suffering from chronic running ear. I cannot remember the device the drops. Many readers who have tried the drops have reported cure or prolonged relief, and even a few readers have reported complete cure.

It is simple enough: Drop in the ear each night and morning for many weeks one or two drops of a solution of 10 grains of acid in an ounce of pure grain alcohol. Warm the solution by standing the vial in some hot water for a few minutes before you use it. If you do not, it will not provide the alcohol, complain to your congressman or somebody—I can do anything at all.

Some of our medical friends who approve this treatment believe it is the drying effect of the alcohol, rather than the somewhat feeble antiseptic effect of the boric acid, that does good. They are probably right, for a number of readers with running ear have found it difficult to get the alcohol and they have used a solution of boric acid in water instead, but without much benefit.

Dr. John A. Pratt, of Minneapolis, has found a fairly simple home treatment for such cases satisfactory. It is continuous dry drainage by means of cotton swabs. He instructs the patient or some responsible member of the family thus:

1. A small piece of absorbent cotton is laid in the tip of the ear, the finger of the left hand; then the end of a toothpick is placed in the center of the cotton.

2. The thumb is placed lightly over the cotton and toothpick; then with the right hand the toothpick is twisted away from one, leaving a small space between the thumb and finger to shape the cotton.

3. The cotton is now an evenly wound swab about 1 1/2 inches long. The swab on the toothpick is now inserted in the ear canal down to the drum and the discharge wiped out. When the canal is dry, a swab is left in the ear for an hour or two. To remove the toothpick one finger is placed on the cotton and the toothpick is slightly twisted toward one, then it is withdrawn, leaving the swab in place.

4. The swab must be made small enough to pass through a medium sized ear canal. It should be, not over one-eighth inch thick.

5. The swab should be changed as often as it is half filled with discharge, whether five minutes or five hours. The object being to keep the discharge out of the middle ear cavity as rapidly as it is found.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Project To Elect the President by the Direct Votes of the People.

On some odd day when he isn't right busy trying to shoot the "flame ducks" out of the congressional podium, the president of the United States has had medicine for the power trust, or seeking to yoke Uncle Sam into the Muscle Shoals plant, Senator Norris has been busy with a new firework to keep his publicity not boiling.

His latest project is to be composed of the junk heap of the past is a proposal to abolish the electoral college and provide for the election of the president and the vice president by popular vote.

Since the government began there have been over 500 proposals made to amend the constitution on how to elect the president, abolish him entirely, and to limit his eligibility to succeed himself.

What the Fathers Thought. Readers of constitutional history will remember that the framers of the executive power of the nation was one of the most difficult questions that the convention of 1787 had to deal.

Hu Williamson, of North Carolina, proposed a triple-headed executive, chosen from each of three sections of the Union—north, middle and south. The New Jersey plan of a constitution submitted by Patterson, favored a plural executive chosen and removable by congress, with a privy council named by congress.

When, following a Maryland precedent, the convention adopted a presidential college device, they thought it a most happy compromise, and it was proposed in any of the ratifying conventions.

The Big Idea Soon Evaporated.

The big idea of the convention was that the states would appoint as electors men of great intelligence, political sagacity and wisdom, who would unite to choose for president and vice president the ablest and most popularly acceptable men of the Union.

For the first two elections the plan worked beautifully. There was no real contest with George Washington for the presidency, and the candidates were voted for to be president, but the one second highest in the electoral ballot was to be vice president.

In 1796 the system produced John Adams, federalist, for president by a majority of two votes, and Thomas Jefferson, democrat, was chosen vice president.

Then in 1800 the system produced the famous tie between Jefferson and Aaron Burr, with Jefferson winning in the house election after a long struggle.

Then Came the Twelfth Amendment.

That ominous occasion led to the proposal and adoption of the twelfth amendment to the constitution, requiring electors to designate whom they voted for to be president and whom for vice president.

By then the somewhat political parties had developed and Jefferson became the apostle of the democratic party.

first it erroneously was reported that he died Friday at noon, but later advice received from Panama advised that his condition was extremely grave. Upon several occasions he was reported as having rallied, and it was hoped that he would survive. Canal Zone capital held hope for his ultimate recovery.

Before he died, young Ayers was president of the Panama Provisional President Dr. Harmodio Arias, who spent a few minutes in the hospital room, during which he shook hands with Ayers and expressed regret at the tardiness of his visit. Later, it was reported, upon hearing of the newspaperman's death, Panama executive was visibly moved, and directed the Panamanian legation at Washington to convey his official sympathy to Dr. and Mrs. T. W. Ayers, parents of the revolution victim, who live at 1013 Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta. The message read as follows:

"I express my deepest sorrow for the death of this brave newspaperman whom I knew and liked so well. I know as if I had lost a friend, and I am extending sympathy to his family."

In addition, the Panamanian foreign minister, Francisco Arias Cordero, also expressed official regret. "As his friend," he said, "I had the satisfaction of watching the great fight he put up for his life. He was a splendid chap."

Born in China.

Hartwell Ayers was born in Shanghai province, China, in 1902, while his father was a medical missionary in that area. He spent a majority of his life in the Orient, coming to the United States in 1909, and entering Wake Forest College, Wake Forest, N. C., from which he was graduated in 1923. He began newspaper work on the Anniston (Ala.) Star, published by his brother, Colonel Harry M. Ayers, and later became a member of the Atlanta staff of the Associated Press. He was well known in the press fraternity of this city. He had been in Panama about three years. His father, Dr. Ayers, is field secretary of the American Baptist Convention.

MOTOR DIVISION

BY SAM W. SMALL

Revision To Save $100,000 in Department Yearly Proposed by Spratt.

Drastic revision of the motor transport department of the borough board, which would save the department "at least $100,000 a year," will be championed before the finance committee of council, it was announced Wednesday by Nelson T. Spratt, member from the tenth ward, who developed the plan.

Under the plan an upward revision of salaries for employees of all departments with the exception of police and fire, and departments in which trucks are used, will be made. No other allowance may be made for ownership and upkeep of cars by the borough employees themselves.

In every instance where cars now are furnished they would be sold by the borough to the employees at an appraised figure, if the Milliken-Spratt plan is consummated. The new wage would be charged with the responsibility of keeping them up and providing all fuel, etc., incident to their operation.

The plan has not been developed fully, but it is estimated that in most instances $25 a month would be allowed for use of each machine. About 100 cars would be affected, it was said by Spratt.

$800 Per Machine.

Cost of upkeep and fuel for the machines now is estimated at $800 annually for each car. This, however, includes a large number of trucks, which still would be kept in service by the borough, and the cost of repairs, which would not be included in the plan as outlined.

It was estimated that at least $100,000 can be saved every year through the change, Spratt said, "and at the same time the equipment would be even better than it is at present, because individual owners would not spend so much money on upkeep but would exchange the equipment as fast as it grew to be a bad investment."

Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, chairman of the finance committee, stated he would look into the matter, and that if any money could be saved the borough he would sanction and support the plan. The borough would not be forced to replace the cars, but that responsibility would lie with the individual operators.

Various department heads appeared before the finance committee Wednesday for the first sessions of the 1931 board to state the needs of their respective divisions. Beginning at 10 o'clock this morning, Murphy stated, the committee will hear from the public and extended an invitation to all persons wishing to bring any matter to the attention of the committee to appear.

Mayor James L. Key also is expected to recommend the change inasmuch as it would cut down on borough expenditures and at the same time would not curtail service to the public.

The mayor stated Wednesday he would attend the executive sessions of the finance committee and recommend certain economies but declined to outline his plans in advance.

"Large enterprises cannot be considered this year," Key said, "because of the lack of funds. There is a deficit of $16,000 all told. We will do our best to operate this year within the limit of our finances, and I shall be pleased if we can avoid increasing the deficit by cutting it down any this year."

B. Graham West, city comptroller, asserted that departmental demands for about $12,000,000 for the year while the revenue, after deducting the fixed charges, will reach only about $10,000,000.

BUSINESS NEWS

BRIGHTENS HOPE FOR U. S. JOBLESS

PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM

BOON TO UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A $2,500,000 national public works program was reported today by Charles M. Woods, of the president's employment committee, as a partial haul for the more than 4,000,000 unemployed.

Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, appearing before the senate appropriations committee today, said that the federal aid road construction program alone would give jobs to an additional 100,000 men during this year.

Woods praised the "overwhelming spirit of co-operation" in the nation but described the extent of unemployment as "not speaking well for the future." He said unemployment has been increasing and that he believed the lowest level would be reached this month and next.

Never Yet Has One Man's Malice Prompted Another To Repent

By Robert Quillen

There is little moral difference between a mob lynching and the ordinary criminal trial in America. Both are prompted by a thirst for revenge.

Only the enlightened and compassionate few understand the purpose of law, and there is no hope of reform until the people outgrow the savage belief that man has a right to punish man.

When civilization as young and ancient kings claimed equality with the gods or pretended to rule by divine appointment their sovereignty was unquestioned. Common men had little value, and hanging them was less bother than trying to reform them. Even the insane were tortured to death. It was the easiest way to get rid of nuisances.

When subjects grew weary of servitude and fought for freedom and won the freedom, they rid the world of many cruelties and absurdities, but they retained many of the old customs and traditions.

They couldn't start at scratch and build a new world to match their new freedom.

They didn't know how. They weren't enlightened enough or decent enough. The most they could do was to substitute a majority of themselves for a king and carry on in the only way they knew.

"The State" had meant the king; now it meant the people—not all the people, but the particular sect or faction or party that constituted the majority.

The majority ruled, and the majority retained the right to punish. But since it is absurd to suppose that a political or geographical boundary can define morality, if we assume that the majority in a state has the right to punish men, merely because it is a majority, then we must concede an equal moral right to any majority—to the majority in a county or town—to three men in any group of five. If three men are marooned on an island, two of them would have the moral right to punish the third for disobeying them.

The assumption that one man or any group of men has the right to punish another is offensive alike to reason and to decency.

The right to confine an evil man is obvious, for men have a right to protect themselves. To confine dangerous men is just and reasonable, to attempt their reformation is both sensible and decent.

But you can't reform men by assuming the right to punish them in revenge for their wrong-doing.

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

Atlanta Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association will be entertained at a dinner Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, 1776 Peachtree street, N. E., presiding. The dinner will be held in the main dining room of the Chamber of Commerce building.

Vandals, motivated apparently by a need for firewood, during the last few days of December, have been tearing lumber from four houses at 18, 20, 22 and 24 Grady avenue, according to reports made to police by owners of the property. Plumbing fixtures also have been wrenched from their connections, evidently for the purpose of being sold as junk.

T. G. Cameron, 310 Gordon avenue, N. E., yardmaster of the Atlanta Joint stock yard, which was burned about a month ago, is reported much improved and it is expected he will return to his office in a few days.

Major General Frank R. McCoy, commanding the fourth corps area, has written all army officers in the eight southern states inviting them to study the life of Andrew Jackson. General McCoy called attention to the value of such study. Wednesday in connection with the anniversary today of Jackson's victory over Pakenham at New Orleans, January 8, 1814.

Elementary school principals will meet at 12 o'clock noon today in the auditorium of the administration building.

Atlanta Genealogical Society will have its quarterly meeting in the masonic room of the Ansley hotel at 12 o'clock noon today, when non-members will be welcomed.

Roosevelt Tells Legislature It Must Probe Gotham Affairs

Executive Calls Conference of Five Governors To Discuss Problem of Unemployment.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Written into the recommendations of his annual message, Governor Roosevelt today left on the doorstep of a new, republican-controlled legislature the exclusive responsibility of deciding upon a New York city investigation.

The governor selected the message to answer demands for a general investigation of the governmental and judicial affairs of the metropolis. He described to the legislature limitations placed by statute upon his investigating power and told the lawmakers that he alone possessed the power to conduct a general investigation into all phases of the government judiciary of the city.

The responsibility of determining the justification for such an inquiry and of deciding upon the form of investigation, he said, "rests exclusively on the legislature."

When your red-blood-cells are only 80% you are not yourself—60% is dangerous

A fact you should not overlook

MORE red-cells in the blood! Good health and resistance to infection and disease, depend on that. If a lowered red-cell count is allowed to continue, ANEMIA often results.

S.S.S. should be your safeguard. A hundred years of experience has proved its usefulness in building red-cells in the blood. Take it before meals. Millions of people have found it the easiest and surest way to restore their red-blood-cells. The appetite picks up, the whole body is strengthened, invigorated! Get S.S.S.—take it and possess a wonderful power of new life and vitality. Ask for the large size. At all drug stores.

How to recognize a low blood count

Blood is Life! You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that the blood is the life of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

You can recognize a lowered count by the way you look and feel—such as body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, pale skin, slow completion, boils and pimples. They may indicate that you need S.S.S.

S.S.S.—the great blood tonic—stimulates the blood-building organs to supply the necessary red-cells if your vitality and clear skin are slipping away from you, try S.S.S.

(Left) Microscope view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to every cubic millimeter.

(Right) Anemic red-blood-cells—only 200,000 per cubic millimeter. They lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh.

GEORGIA'S FARM STATES PRAISED

Texas and South Carolina Also Lauded by Campbell Before Bankers.

Georgia, Texas and South Carolina are in the best agricultural condition of all states in the cotton belt, in the opinion of Professor J. Phil Campbell, director of extension, State College of Agriculture, in a brief address before the executive council of the Georgia Bankers' Association, in session here Wednesday. Professor Campbell, who has just completed a tour of inspection of every cotton-growing state in the south, urged that bankers of Georgia regulate the extension of credit to farmers on a scientific production basis.

"It is squarely up to the bankers of Georgia," he said, "to enforce a scientific cotton acreage reduction for the crop season of 1931. It is further up to them to direct the granting of credit in the proper way to make every farm self-sustaining."

Between 50 and 75 per cent, Professor Campbell said, of all state banks can be firmly depended upon to "enforce directly credit next spring." The remainder of the banks, he said, must be "lined up" in the meantime.

At the executive meeting it was decided to hold the 40th annual convention of the association at Sea Island Beach May 28, 29 and 30. Those present were: John M. Graham, of Rome, president; Ronald Ransom, of Atlanta, vice president and chairman of the council; Haynes R. Haynes, of Atlanta, secretary; C. W. Kiklighter, of Greenville; R. F. Fowler, of Macon; W. B. Haley, of Albany; and E. H. Griffin, of Griffin, all of whom are members of the executive council. Walter N. Harrison, of Atlanta, chairman of the agricultural committee; Professor J. Phil Campbell, of the State College of Agriculture; H. L. Young, of Atlanta, chairman legislative committee; and Orville A. Park, of Macon, general counsel, also were present.

A plea for some form of insurance against want in old age was renewed by the governor, who declared himself dissatisfied with an old age security law enacted by the last legislature.

The last two years, the governor said, had placed New York state in the vanguard in remedial legislation for farmers. The state, he said, had progressed to the point "where it can visualize and formulate a practical, definite and far-reaching land policy." This, he explained, was the result of long-range planning for the building of arteries of transportation into farming areas, diversification of crops, reforestation and flood control. The land policy will be conveyed to the legislature later, in the form of a special message from the governor.

DRY LAW APPROVED BY PRESBYTERIANS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The administration committee of the Presbyterian board of Christian education, it was announced today, has reaffirmed the stand of the Presbyterians in the United States of America, in favor of prohibition and has declared that not only must the saloon not come back, but "the government must not go into the liquor business."

The message was written by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of Pittsburgh, moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly.

GRACE LINE GIVEN 12 MILLION LOAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The shipping board today announced loans totaling $12,000,000 to the Grace Steamship Company of New York city and its subsidiary, the Panama Mail Line, of San Francisco, for construction of four vessels.

The loans were made under the Jones-White act, which authorizes the board to advance three-quarters of total construction cost to shipping companies.

Contract for construction already has been awarded to the Federal Shipbuilding Company, of Kearny, N. J. It has been estimated construction of the vessels would employ between 2,000 and 3,000 men for two years.

NEBRASKA SELECTED ON CLAIMS COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Appointment of Fred K. Nielsen, of Nebraska, as American member of the Mexican-American special claims commission, was announced today by the state department.

Nielsen since July 31, 1926, has been American member of the general claims commission, which has two countries and also will continue in this capacity. He replaces Ernest R. Perry, of Nebraska, whose resignation was accepted recently by President Hoover.

Rumors of formation of an adjournment group in the legislature flew thick and fast Wednesday without confirmation. Several leading legislators admitted that they have heard reports of the prospective action of the "bloc" aimed toward adjournment, but denied having knowledge of the prospective leaders of the movement. Opinions were that such a move would not gain its objective.

Newspapermen covering the legislature Wednesday were proud possessors of a brand new press-room, located next to the senate chamber. Several letters over the door, the words "Press Room" inform the legislators where the newspaper "boys" are to be found.

On the heels of a senate request for information concerning enforcement of the Georgia public service commission law, Wednesday night were at work on a full report to be presented to the senate today. A list of motor buses and operators licensed by the commission was being prepared and members of the commission were engaged in getting up other data. The request of the senate was a friendly one aimed at obtaining information necessary for consideration of new motor bus regulation bills, it was said.

The first attempt at additional regulation and taxation of motor buses was introduced in the senate, but an effort to introduce the bill failed when the sponsor was informed that such measures, involving taxation, must be law originated in the house. The bill in question calls for a mileage tax.

A resolution by Representatives Martin and Moody, of Troup county, asking Georgia planters to reduce their cotton acreage by 25 per cent this year was defeated by a vote of 63 to 54 Wednesday in the house. The resolution was designed to force up the price of cotton.

C. Gavin, of Clay county, Wednesday was sworn in as representative to succeed the late Emmett Shaw. The oath was administered by Supreme Court Justice Marcus W. Beck. A committee will draw up resolutions on deaths of five members of the house since the 1929 regular session.

A resolution to have a committee visit the state hospital at Milledgeville was introduced in the house Wednesday, but no action was taken.

George W. Lankford, senator from the 15th, Wednesday called a meeting of the finance committee, of which he is chairman, for 2 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon to consider Senate Bill No. 1, providing for diversion of $5,000,000 of highway funds to the general fund in the state treasury.

Initiative powers of the state senate are limited in the extra session to such matters as introducing bills for creation of the tax and budget commission and handling of the convict situation, where no appropriations or tax raising features are involved, under the governor's call. President W. Cecil Neil explained Wednesday, the senate is prohibited from originating bills involving appropriations or taxation. A bill for diversion of highway funds can be originated in the senate, but any appropriation from the funds after they are turned over to the treasury must originate in the house, he said. However, after a taxation or appropriation measure comes to the senate from the house, the senate can substitute entirely different matter, he added.

Mirror May Be Split Under Terms of Will

FORT MYERS, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A will has been filed in Glades county which may require the cutting of a mirror.

The will is that of Mrs. Mary Shaw Yoe, of Louisville, Ky. The instrument states that the mirror, now a heirloom in the Yoe home in Kentucky, may be desired by two daughters and in that case it is to be cut in two.

If the mirror is not divided, the will continues, the daughter taking the heirloom is to pay the other daughter half of its appraised value.

RECOGNITION OF U. S. GIVEN TO GUATEMALA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The state department today instructed the American legation at Guatemala City to extend recognition to the government of Provisional President Andrade.

Undersecretary Cotton, announcing the action, said it was in accordance with the policy followed under the treaty of peace of 1923.

Between the United States and the new government, while not a party to the treaty, has adhered to it. In not recognizing any one who came to power in a Central American republic after leaving a coup d'etat, Mr. Cotton said Andrade had nothing to do with the coup d'etat which brought to power Manuel Orellana, who was ousted by the new government.

The undersecretary said there had been no decision on recognizing Minister Alfaro, of Panama, as president of that country. Alfaro was designated to power in Panama after a coup d'etat which upset the administration of President Arosemena.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, luncheon was served at the Atlanta Athletic Club with the following additional Atlanta guests: William B. Spang, president of the Atlanta Clearing House Association; G. Maxwell and J. Sheppard Kennedy.

"TORCH MURDER" STIRS ENGLAND

OTTENBURG, Northumberland, England, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Her head bashed in and her body virtually roasted, a young woman, 28, was found semi-conscious beside the smoking ruins of her automobile near here last night.

In a moment of lucidity before death she told her father a stranger had accosted her Tuesday night asking for a lift to Newcastle. He then clubbed her over the head, tossing her on the back seat and setting fire to the automobile which he shoved over a cliff.

This little Northumberland town has become greatly excited over the crime, which is the third "torch murder" mystery in England of the last few weeks.

TWO MORE SLAIN IN ST. LOUIS FEUD

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The bullet-riddled bodies of Leo Orlando, a gangster, and Isadore Katz, a hanger-on of the gang, were found in northern St. Louis early today. They had been dead several hours.

St. Louis police said they believed the killings were the latest outcome of the gang feud in which Lester Barth and Dewey Goebel were machine-gunned to death November 22, and in which Al Mulcahey met a like fate Dec. 19.

TANK LEAK LATEST ILL BESETING GIRL FLIERS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Bad luck took a hand in the endurance flight of Bobby Trout and Edna May Cooper today and dished up a leak in a wing tank of their biplane, Lady Ralph, as they celebrated Miss Trout's twenty-fifth birthday by flying past the 63-hour mark 11:30 a. m.

Miss Trout told of the misfortune in a note to the ground crew, but said the leak was not serious. That and cloudy weather were the only threats to the day's labor and they did not bother the young women greatly despite two narrow escapes from fuel landings and gasoline shower baths in the first two days of their flight.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales and Prince George, his brother, will start on their voyage to South America Saturday, January 17, it was officially announced today.

IN GEORGIA'S LEGISLATIVE HALLS

Major D. F. McClatchey, veteran secretary of the state senate, Wednesday notified the world at large that he missed the old fashioned hanging chandelier that collected dust for years in the senate chamber. "They've taken away our lights, and we couldn't hold a night session if we wanted to," he said. Later in the afternoon, as twilight approached, he found himself in error, however, as overhead lights in concealed behind frosted glass in the senate dome ceiling were switched on and proved better than the multi-globed chandelier.

Rumors of formation of an adjournment group in the legislature flew thick and fast Wednesday without confirmation. Several leading legislators admitted that they have heard reports of the prospective action of the "bloc" aimed toward adjournment, but denied having knowledge of the prospective leaders of the movement. HOUSE MEETS WIN BUT ONE POINT

Concerted Attack Knocks But One Item From Propaganda Fund.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A concerted drive by house wets failed today to do more than barely dent the fund provided in the first deficiency bill for prohibition enforcement.

The measure carried $93,000,000 to meet emergencies in various departments, including $543,370 for the prohibition bureau, a part of which was to provide 130 additional dry agents.

The wets succeeded in having eliminated a provision to expend $10,000 for prohibition publicity.

Dry forces held their lines despite the battering of the wets, led by Representatives Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, chief of the anti-prohibition bloc, and LaGuardia, republican, New York.

A point of order raised by Representative O'Connor, democrat, New York, brought an amendment from Chairman Wood, of the appropriations committee, eliminating the propaganda provision.

Tried to this contest, the house judiciary committee took steps to press legislative action on two prohibition enforcement proposals approved by the Wickham commission. It agreed to senate amendments to the Stobbs bill to modify the Jones law by creating a class of minor offenders involving less than a gallon of liquor and a penalty not exceeding a $500 fine and six months in prison.

The committee also instructed Chairman Graham to seek legislative right-of-way for the Christopherson bill to strengthen the padlock law by notifying the absent owner of property through publication. At the same time, it approved the Graham bill to make permanent 16 additional federal judges created in 1922 as another enforcement move.

At the outset of the fight over the publicity provision, LaGuardia produced a letter from Comptroller General McCall citing that former Representative William D. Upshaw, of Georgia, had been employed by the prohibition bureau in educational work. LaGuardia said the expense entailed by employing Upshaw "isn't worth it."

Linthicum offered an amendment to prohibit the bureau from operating speakeasies and poolrooms for the purpose, he said, of entrapping citizens and officers. His amendment was defeated 106 to 54, he declared that "it is up to you now to determine whether you want the government's money spent to trap citizens into violating the law."

The defeat by a wet representative of Ruth Hanna McCormack in her race for the senate from Illinois, was cited by Representative Sabath, democrat, Illinois, as indicative of the desire of the majority of the Illinois people to repulse prohibition. He asserted Mrs. McCormack tried to evade the wet and dry question in her campaign.

BACHELOR DINNER IS EVENT TONIGHT

A "bachelors' dinner" attended by a large and representative group of unmarried Georgia men, headed by Governor-elect, Richard B. Russell, Jr., as well as by several well-known Atlanta benefactors, will be tendered at 6 o'clock this evening by the Druid Hills Baptist church. Approximately 100 bachelors will be present.

"We are in the midst of many important matters in connection with the special session," the governor-elect and speaker of the house commented when asked whether he would be on hand, "but nothing short of a providence could keep me away from that dinner for us bachelors."

Mayor James L. Key also will attend and will speak on the fortunes and misfortunes, if any, of the unmarried man. Sam Tate and H. L. Litchfield, both of Tate, will be present, as will George Alexander, of McDonough; Henry Estes, of Gainesville, and a number of other prominent bachelors of Georgia.

Conceived by Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the church, the event will resolve itself into a veritable turkey banquet with music and flowers as features.

HE SUFFERED FOR YEARS WITH PILES

Bleeding Kind Was So Painful He Slept on a Pillow.

TELLS HOW FINALLY HE OVERCAME PILES

"It was no clutch for me to overcome my pile trouble because I suffered more or less that way for twenty-five years, but in six weeks' time I was rid of piles and feeling like a new man and thinking it simply wonderful. I am writing to let the whole world know," declares Hugo Miller, a prominent paperhanger of Abbeville, S. C.

"My piles were the bleeding kind. Pains in the bowels almost doubled me up sometimes and the pain was so bad that I couldn't lay in bed comfortably so I slept with a pillow under me. Of course I already had tried a number of remedies for piles through the years but they did no good until a couple months ago I ran across these wonderful Colic Eile Pills. The first couple bottles began to show results. The pain got less and then stopped. I kept on taking them for a full six weeks and it was marvelous the way they worked. I recommend Colic Eile Pills to everybody now," continued Mr. Miller.

"Until the perfection of these pills which you swallow with a little water at meal time, about the only remedies known for piles were a surgical operation—alive or suppositories. No nobody need suffer any longer. They are guaranteed to completely relieve you of every sign of piles or money back without quibble or question. At drug stores or by return mail on receipt of 75c in stamps or coins. Colic Chemical Co., Brentwood, Maryland.—(adv.)

European Sentiment Against War—Kellogg

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state and now 25 judge of the World Court, said at the White House today he saw "no war clouds hanging over Europe."

The former secretary said he had traveled extensively on the continent and that in no country did he find any sentiment favoring war.

"There is some unrest in Europe," he said, "but its foundation is an economic one. The people of Europe do not want and will not tolerate war."

TEXTILE STRIKE SPREAD IS FEARED IN BRITAIN

BURNLEY, England, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A lockout involving 25,000 workers in the cotton trade was threatened tonight by a decision of the Burnley Master Cotton Spinners' Association, members of which voted to close their mills Saturday unless a strike now a effect at other plants is settled in the meantime.

At present 5,000 weavers are on strike against the introduction of the "eight looms per weaver" system in certain mills. The men here have tended four looms, and they contend that the new schedule would greatly increase unemployment.

EDITOR LOOKS TO SOUTH TO SAVE INDIVIDUALISM

Graves Tells Rollins Institute Dixie Is Hope Against Merger Evil.

WINTER PARK, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A southern newspaper editor climaxed two days' discussion of the loss of competition and initiative in modern movement toward mergers by pointing to the south as the spot that eventually will save and protect America's individualism.

John Temple Graves II, editor, the Birmingham Age-Herald, brought an enthusiastic address of optimism to a series of discussions of mergers and chain stores at the Rollins Institute of State-manship, Rollins College, here tonight. Many gloomy forecasts had been given as to the probable fate of America's famous "go-getting" proclivities.

Graves defined individualism as self-expression for individual business, communities, professions, arts and nations, limited only by the rules of social existence.

In justifying his demand for continued individualism the speaker declared "the most satisfactory approach to progress and social justice will come of the free and fair play of opposing tastes, desires, needs and dreams."

"Competition therefore is the law of life. And in that law lies the need for individualism. The world can't be thought out. It must be fought out—not with the harsh individualism of the stone age—but a modern enlightened individualism, constantly rubbing shoulders, eternally engaged

The Other Bullet

INSTALLMENT XL

"When Lammie turned in that story, Jimmy Sears wanted to kill it for Lammie's own sake. It meant that Lammie had to be taken off the police beat, where he was doing good work, and Lammie knew it. Jimmy told him that if he ran the story, he'd have to bring Lammie into the office on rewire, and that meant a salary cut. Of course he'd be no earthly good on the police beat after a thing like that, and Lammie's the type that hates like hell to be tied to the office instead of going after the stuff while it's hot. He didn't do it for the sake of the Herald, either. That one story wasn't worth queering himself as a police reporter."

"What did he do it for, then?" Larrinan asked wonderingly.

Peter countered with another question.

"You know Lammie. Did he ever strike you as a sensational sub-story, asking us all to be sweet to the poor little criminals?"

"Gosh, no!" Larrinan's response was swift and emphatic.

"Then maybe you'll believe what I tell you. That kid Jordan didn't need to be beaten up to tell what he knew. Why he was ready to break at a touch. He was so scared that all he needed was a little time, and he'd have spilled everything. But Morton wouldn't have it that way. The train was getting closer to town all the time, and Morton wanted the credit of getting that confession all by himself, before Jordan was taken to headquarters. So he took the hose to him—being mighty careful, of course, to put it where Jordan wouldn't be any marks on his face, to show."

"Every time the kid would shriek out a sentence, yelling that he was telling the truth, Morton would whale into him again, saying, 'That'll put some of the truth into you!' Morton had him in the baggage car, where nobody could hear them. The kid was sobbing and gasping for breath, and Morton would take the hose to him again to make him talk faster."

"I met the train with a camera man to take flashlights when they came in. Morton had Jordan by the arm, but it wasn't to keep him from trying to run away. It was because the kid couldn't stand alone. There wasn't a mark on his face, but it was the funniest color you ever saw. It was a queer, sticky white with a greenish tinge to it. We got the picture of the two of them together, and the next morning Morton was played up as the hero who had captured the desperate bandit single handed and had secured a confession even before the prisoner was taken to headquarters."

Peter laughed a brief, harsh cackle. But there was no laughter in his eyes.

"I wondered why Lammie slipped off in the dark by himself, instead of taking a lift to the office with Andrews and me. I found out, when he turned in his story next day." Peter paused for a moment, then turned to look the inspector full in the face.

"Say, Larrinan, once when I was a kid, some boys on our block were yelling their heads off, and I dashed out, hell bent, to join the fun. They were throwing rocks at a mummy, dragged along a cat. They'd already broken its leg and hit it somewhere in its inner workings. It could just drag itself along a few feet, and then they'd plug it again. They were lined up in a row, so they'd all have even chances. I grabbed up a baseball, at and swatted the cat over the head. It was the only thing to do. Then I had to fight the bunch for butting in and not playing fair."

"I guess the cat should have been killed anyhow. I guess it ought to have been drowned when it was broken for that matter. I couldn't think at first why I remembered that scene when I went down with Andrews to take the pictures of Jordan. Then I figured it out. The way that cat looked when I got to it was just the look in Jordan's eyes, there on the station platform."

Larrinan's big fist smote the counter.

ter a mighty blow. His kind Irish eyes looked straight into Peter's.

"I was down on de Lammie myself," he said honestly. "We've got to stick together in the department, and I thought he'd squealed and hadn't played ball with us. When his name first came up tonight I was giving you fair warning, because from what you told me I had it in mind to try to fix it so we could run him in on suspicion. I've changed my mind about that. But if de Lammie has got into serious trouble, Morton will see to it that he gets the job of questioning him, and then—God help him!"

"Well, I've given you the lowdown, and I'm glad you look at it the way I thought you would. But I'm stumped. I don't mind telling you, if you'll keep it under your hat, that whoever took this ring is mixed up in the Mortison murder. If I were putting money on it, I'd lay a ten-to-one bet that he's the fellow that did it. What I can't make out is how the person who stole this ring from Mortison's room at Langhams got hold of Lammie's name to use when he pawned it."

"How about the description on the pawn shop report? That might help you to trace him," Larrinan said dubiously.

"What's a description?" Peter snorted. "Isadore makes a guess at his weight and height, and says he has light brown hair and hazel eyes. If you stood in the ferry building when a boat came in I wonder just how many men would pass who fit that description."

"I put down all the law says I should tell. How should I know that you wanted something more this time? It put it all down," Isadore, who had started timorously at the sound of his name, began with a weak and chiming clamor from behind the counter.

"For the Lord's sake, nobody's going to eat you!" Peter's already strained nerves gave way in a burst of angry disgust.

"If you had only told me you wanted something more this time—" "Well, I'm telling you now," Peter, rather ashamed of his outburst, spoke with elaborate patience. "If you know what this man really looked like, spill it."

"Certainly, gentlemen, I know. Isadore rubbed his claw-like hands together with an ingratiating gesture. "This man, he has a soft-collared shirt."

"Never mind about his clothes. He can change them easy enough," Larrinan tapped the counter impatiently. "But you see his long, thin neck from above the collar of this shirt. And his Adam's apple moved up and down fast, like an elevator. He chews gum, and you see his Adam's apple go up and down when he chews. His nose has a bump on the bridge, and when he walks he limps with his left foot."

For more than a moment neither Peter nor Larrinan spoke. Then Peter cleared his throat with an effort.

"Can I count on you—to keep still?" he asked huskily.

"But—if it's murder—do you mean to say you're dropping it?"

"I'm not dropping it. All I ask is for you to know nothing about it, and let me handle it in my own way. I can't let Lammie get into Morton's hands unless it's absolutely necessary. My God! Peter's voice broke in something like a sob. "He got his limp and that bump on his nose in a train wreck—one of the best stories the Herald ever ran. And we've kidded him about his trick Adam's apple at the office a hundred times!"

Peter stood with rare hesitation in the doorway of the local room. He took a few steps forward, paused, veered toward the city desks, and again came to an uncertain halt.

"Hey, Peter, you'd better hold a caucus with yourself," the water front man yelled out. "He got his limp, either stand up or sit down, and get out of my light. You make me nervous, shilly-shally around like that."

Georgia Boy is Healthiest

"My little son, S. G., Jr., suffered from biliousness," says Mrs. S. G. Gurey, 173 Brookline St., Atlanta. "He was having a hard time until I heard of California Fig Syrup and got him some. The first few doses settled his stomach, gave him an appetite, regulated his bowels, brightened him up marvelously."

"I have since used Fig Syrup with him every time he has been upset or headachy. It has been a wonderful help to him; has helped make him the strong, healthy boy you see—perhaps the healthiest one in our neighborhood."

For more than fifty years, mothers have praised California Fig Syrup. Leading physicians advise its use with bilious, headachy, constipated children, or to keep the bowels open during colds or children's diseases. Children love its rich, fruity flavor. It tones and strengthens weakened bowels; helps make children robust. Look for the name California when buying that marks the genuine.
